Critical Requirements for Pest Prevention in the Food and Beverage Industry

According to the American Institute of Bakers (AIB), mice need only a ¼" or the size of a pencil to gain access into the facility. Any visible white light is indicative of a problem.

Gary Burgess, Training Director at AIB International, cites the following critical requirements:

2.9.1.1 The building has barriers to protect against birds, rodents, insects and other pests.

2.9.1.2 The structures are free from cracks, crevices and pest harborages.

2.9.1.3 External doors, windows or other openings are close-fitting or otherwise pest-proofed to less than ¼ in or 6 mm.

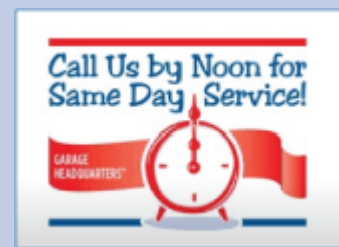

If you have any gaps in your facility, Garage Headquarters can provide a free survey to recommend ways to tighten up before the auditors arrive at your back door.

GarageReady Cabinets

GarageReady cabinets are the latest Garage Headquarters innovation for the demanding environment of the garage.

With structural integrity and professional installation, GarageReady cabinets offer a level of strength, flexibility, and simplicity that other cabinets and workstations will never match.

While other cabinets offer little or no structural support with paper thin backing, Garage Headquarters' line of GarageReady cabinets have reinforced Integra back panels with steel brackets.

To get rid of the clutter, contact Liz Favata at lfavata@ohd.com or call 1-800-62-GARAGE for a No Charge Space Management Solution for the Garage Evaluation!

Making a Difference Counts

Garage Headquarters recently partnered with Rebuilding Together to make homes safer for area residents in need. According to the coordinator of this project, Garage Headquarters is the first company to donate materials and labor to replace a garage door.

It is our pleasure to play such a distinctive role in improving the communities in which we do business. We look forward to continuing our good works to live the motto that "We care!"
